Getting Involved, Setting Goals, Answering Questions

Well, here we are at the end of my term as president of the ISSA and my last editorial in the Iowa Snowmobiler to share my thoughts in this lead role.

But, this won't be the last time you hear from me. I have promised Cameron that I will continue to contribute to the magazine with timely information from the Iowa State Snowmobile Grant Program and its

From the President's Desk

Review and Selection Committee (RSC). In fact, an article on the groomer selection process will be in an upcoming issue, and I hope to do a few articles highlighting places to ride here in the state.

As I sit down to write this final editorial, I started to think where this adventure all started. It was about 16 years ago when I was just a member of the Snow Pioneers snowmobile club from Region 5. I started asking and wanting to know more about the grooming program and funding. My club at the time was sharing a groomer with two other clubs and a 1985 Tucker couldn't cover 300-plus miles in three counties.

I started asking questions. Soon, Past ISSA President David Carmichael pulled me aside after an ISSA meeting and, with a sly smile, told me, "You want to make a difference and get your answers? You need to get involved with this board."

Those words, combined with the passion for serving my community and love of snowmobiling my father has instilled in me, lit a fire in me to make a difference in snowmobiling in Iowa. I took those words of advice to heart and began to serve.

I started out as an assistant director for Region 5 and then moved on to the director spot. That's when I really got involved. David Downing, then snowmobile program manager for the Iowa Department of Natural Resources, and the ISSA Board of Directors asked me to overhaul the groomer operator program. That assignment eventually led to Carmichael and other past presidents to nominate me for the International Groomer of the Year Award. Receiving that award in 2014 is what I consider the highest honor a groomer operator can get.

Soonafter, I was asked by the snowmobilers from my region to run for ISSA vice president. I was humbled and a little concerned that they thought I was the right guy for the job. Following that election, I got more involved and found that there was room for more improvement and expansion of the trail grant and groomer process. My list of questions was growing, both from myself and others asking me. I set out to get ISSA-member questions answered and more information out to the membership.

When I became president two years ago, I knew I had some big shoes to fill as the guys before me made their mark on our sport both here in Iowa and across the nation. I remember a quote from Antoine de Saint-Exupéry: "A goal without a plan is just a wish."

I knew my goals were to have the ISSA membership gain a better understanding of where their registration dollars go and what it is spent on, establishing a set criteria for how a club applies and gets a groomer and to get rid of that dang second sticker.

Chris Willey
ISSA
President

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

- Cresco Driftrunners Toys for Tots Drive Saturday, Nov. 24, at South Side Bar & Grill, Cresco. DJ starts at 8 p.m. Admission is an unwrapped toy or cash donation.

December

- ISSA Board of Directors meeting TBD.

After the goals were set, I now had to figure out the plan. When I shared these goals with the ISSA board, I said I felt the best way to achieve this is the snowmobilers of Iowa need to be in charge of the program. I think they thought I had lost my mind, but the plan was set in motion with the help of the ISSA directors, ISSA membership and a lot of background work from past presidents who knew a lot more than I did.

In the end, we got the job done. The snowmobilers of Iowa have control of our future and our registration dollars. We have more funding to improve trails and equipment. I fell short on the one sticker, but that goal is still attainable if we want it.

So as I wrap up my term as captain of the ship and pass it to Brian, I'm passing on those same words of advice that inspired me. You want to make a difference and get your answers? You need to get involved and set a goal.

Architect of Snowmobile Program in Iowa Passes Away

Roy Downing of Albia, a 41-year employee of the Iowa Department of Natural Resources (IDNR) and the architect behind the registration fee-based snowmobile program in Iowa, passed away Oct. 14 at the age of 94.

Downing served as the Superintendent of Waters for the Iowa Conservation Commission (now the IDNR) from 1964 until his retirement in 1986. Before that, he worked as a conservation officer in Appanoose and Monroe counties in Iowa.

In 1973, he assumed responsibility for the growing sport of snowmobiling in the state and put in place many of the same standards he had previously applied to the boating industry, including paying registration fees.

Downing firmly believed a registration system for snowmobiles would only strengthen the sport and provide additional riding opportunities. "Pay to play is the only way" was a mantra he often uttered as he stumped for a fee-based trail system.

Recognizing his contributions to the sport, Downing earned the ISSA's Lifetime Achievement Award in 2006. In 1981, he left the snowmobile program, and his second wife, Nancy (Exline) Downing, ran it for two years.

In 2003, his son, David, became program manager, overseeing both snowmobiles and all-terrain vehicle registrations in Iowa. In 2016, Downing transferred to another department within the IDNR but still earned lifetime distinction honors from the ISSA for his 13 years of service.

In 2017, the ISSA gained control of the program from the IDNR.

Preparing for New Role

Greetings, Iowa snowmobilers. It's getting close to our favorite time of the year again. It's time for club meetings, trail maintenance and groomer classes. I hope we get the moisture this winter that we have been getting all fall. We could be in for a great season.

Vice President's Message

I am working with current president Chris Willey on preparing myself to take over the presidency of the ISSA. I will work hard for all Iowa snowmobilers as all the past presidents have done before me and will lean on them at times.

As we move forward with the Iowa snowmobile program, we are all getting things done across the state that are in need of improving. My late father, David Carmichael, put his heart and soul into the ISSA, and although I'm not my father, I have all snowmobilers in mind and hope to do justice to everything we have strived so hard to accomplish over the many years the association has been going.

Brian Carmichael
ISSA Vice President

I would like to get together with different clubs and ride together this winter. I did do a couple rides last year with some ISSA board members and we had a great time riding all areas that we could with the low snow that we had.

Hope to see all of you at the state convention this year as it is always a great time to catch up and acknowledge the ones who do so much work for snowmobiling in Iowa. Think SNOW!!

Spina Bifida Profiles

New Series Intends to Show How Children with Condition Mature into Productive Adults

by Cameron Hanson

Since 1982, the Spina Bifida Association of Iowa (SBAIA) has served as the ISSA's official charity. Over those 30 years and counting, snowmobilers from Iowa have contributed more than $250,000 to this non-profit organization.

Spina bifida is a birth defect where the spinal cord does not develop properly. Children with the condition have limited sensation in their lower body, and as a result, mobility and incontinence are major obstacles for the families to overcome. More than 150,000 people suffer from spina bifida nationally, and the SBAIA has members across the state.

Each November, charitable donations from snowmobilers are collected at the ISSA's annual convention with the top fundraising club earning a plaque of appreciation from SBAIA officials, who are also on hand to interact with snowmobilers there and share their inspirational stories.

The Urbandale-based organization earmarks those funds for travel expenses, equipment purchases and educational programs aimed at assisting families coping with the disability.

In October, club members also participate in the SBAIA's Walk-N-Roll at Principal Park in Des Moines; and then each January, they meet in Huxley for the ISSA's annual Winter Kids' Day and snowmobile or utility vehicle ride on the Heart of Iowa Nature Trail.

Now, this month in the Iowa Snowmobiler begins a new series of SBAIA member profiles, entitled "Spina Bifida Grows Up."

This collection of articles was developed by SBAIA board member Diane Glass of Des Moines, who was employed by the Des Moines Register for 17 years.

Glass, now 71, said she was born with spina bifida "at a time when babies were not always treated or expected to live." She said her articles will "show how an investment in the lives of children with spina bifida results in successful teens and adults, living productive and interesting lives."

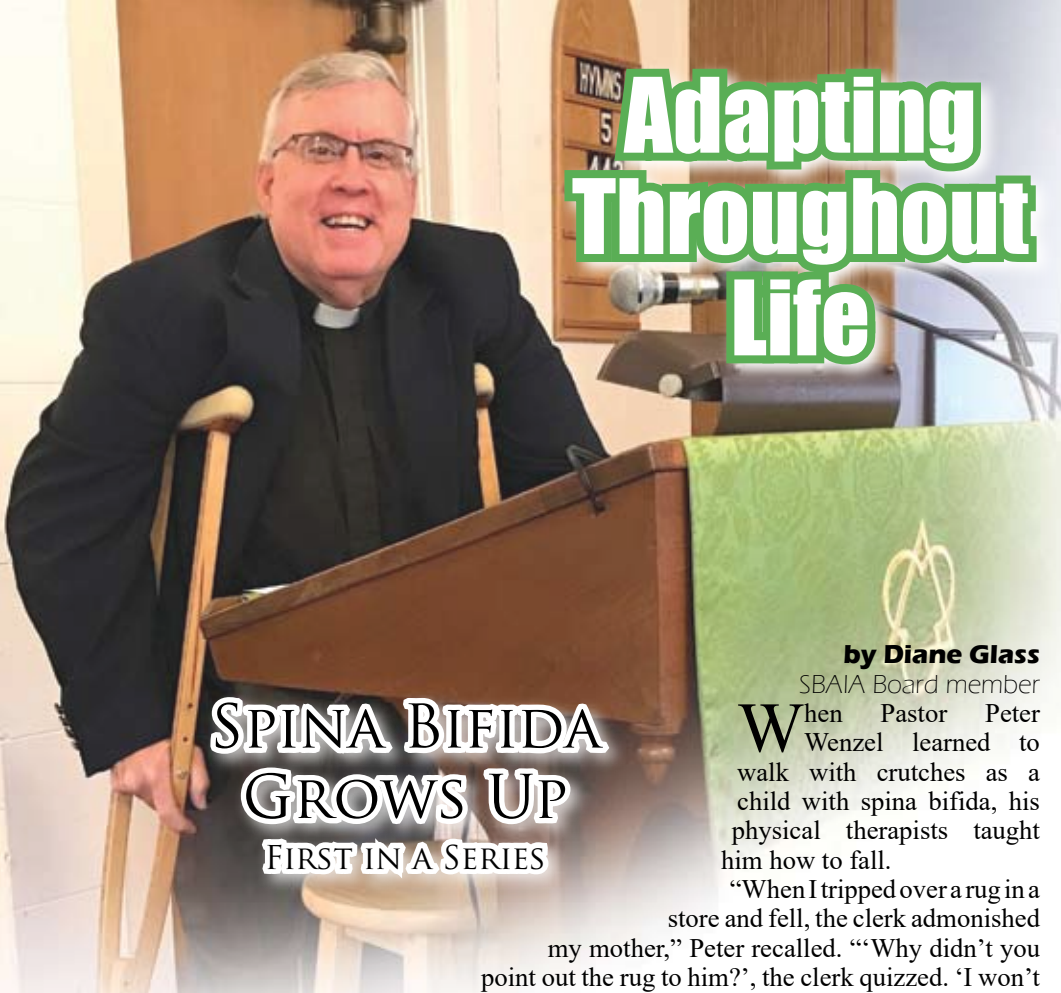

Before 1960, Glass said 90 percent of babies born with spina bifida died, primarily due to hydrocephalus, or fluid on the brain. With the invention of the shunt—a tube that drains that fluid—babies began to live normal life spans. The Americans with Disabilities Act, passed 28 years ago, along with improved public education "opened the door to participation in the workplace, schools and community for us," she said.

Over the next six issues, her profiles will peer into the lives of a marketing executive, a teacher, a world traveler, an exercise enthusiast, a mental health specialist and an ice hockey player. Beginning on the next page, her first story is about a pastor from Clarksville.

"These Iowans, all born with spina bifida, now live active, productive lives due to medical advances, increased public awareness and community support from organizations like the ISSA," Glass said. "Snowmobilers have been long-term supporters of ours, and we would like you to know how your investment in babies and children has paid off in terms of people who are living full lives."

Adapting Throughout Life

SPINA BIFIDA GROWS UP FIRST IN A SERIES

by Diane Glass

SBAIA Board member

When Pastor Peter Wenzel learned to walk with crutches as a child with spina bifida, his physical therapists taught him how to fall.

"When I tripped over a rug in a store and fell, the clerk admonished my mother," Peter recalled. "'Why didn't you point out the rug to him?,' the clerk quizzed. 'I won't always be there with him,' she responded. 'He needs to learn on his own'."

This encouragement to be independent by not only his parents and a supportive older brother and sister, but also his teachers, gave young Peter the foundation on which he built his life.

Born in 1957 in an era when doctors didn't always know how to treat spina bifida, Peter recounts that the doctor attending his birth left the delivery room, told his father that his son was born with spina bifida and said, "You need to see a neurosurgeon." He then walked off. His dad carried him in a basket when he was one month old to see that neurosurgeon.

"My parents had to fly by the seat of their pants," Peter said.

At a time when adaptations for children with disabilities were rare, Peter, like his parents, made things work with ingenuity, creativity and persistence.

"I was born adapting," he said. "This is all I've ever known. This is my norm."

Adapting meant crawling up the stairs to his bedroom. Going to an "orthopedic school" for children with intellectual and physical disabilities for the first eight years of his school life. Turning to his dad, a draftsman, to design an ileostomy that didn't leak. Enduring a psychological test at five years of age when he was told he would "never be college material." Responding to a nurse who told him children with spina bifida "were dropping like flies" at a nearby facility.

"I had great parents who saw me through. I am who I am today because of my family. My teachers saw potential in me at my orthopedic school," he recalled. Upon recommendation of his principal, he was mainstreamed at the local high school.

That was the beginning of his academic life. Peter attended the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee for one year and then transferred to Lake College in Sheboygan, Wis, studying religion and theater. Graduating with a B.A., he then enrolled in seminary at the Boston School of Theology where he earned his M.Div.

He was ordained in 1990, and today, he serves as pastor of First United Church of Christ-Pleasant Valley in rural Clarksville. Peter was married for 23 years and has a son who recently graduated from college.

"When I told a friend that I would like to go skydiving, he said 'let's do it.' When I explained that my legs might not hold up, he came up with a solution," Peter said. His friends, now numbering six, bookended him to ensure a soft landing.

Peter says he's not much of an advocate. He prefers to communicate a message with his actions, not his words. He doesn't talk about his disability in sermons at his church.

"I'm there. Isn't that message enough?" he said.

Local Cross-Country Racer Planned for Convention Seminar this Month

by Cameron Hanson

Cross-country snowmobile racer Mitch Sebastian of Spencer will headline the Saturday afternoon seminars at this month's ISSA annual convention in Okobojo.

Slated to begin at 2 p.m., the 22-year-old, who began riding snowmobiles when he was just two years old, will share his stories from the track and trail during his presentation, entitled "Racing from Day 1."

After dabbling in snowmobile drag racing, Sebastian first entered the United States Cross-Country circuit in 2012. In 2013, he was named Rookie of the Year and won a Sport class championship before stepping up to the Semi Pro class during the 2016-17 campaign.

A lifelong member of the Clay County Sno Broncs, Sebastian and his family have been strong supporters of the local snowmobile community, and at the 2017 ISSA Annual Convention, he received the ISSA's Young Adult Snowmobiler of the Year Award.

Sebastian's seminar is expected to last an hour and will be followed by the Ride Iowa planning session. Approaching its third season, this guided trail program for the ISSA invites clubs from around the state to host rides and encourage guests from other parts of Iowa to tour their local trail systems.

The third seminar planned for convention weekend is the groomer operator training and recertification course, as detailed in the October issue of this publication. This training begins at 1 p.m.

According to the convention planning committee, rooms are still available for convention weekend. "We want to remind everyone to book their rooms as soon as possible to take advantage of the ISSA block rate," committee co-chair and Region 1 Director Dan Delperdang urged.

Working with several clubs from northwest Iowa, the committee is also looking for additional prizes for fundraiser drawings as well as silent auction items. The ISSA will also be raffling off two donated Grizzly coolers, and several sponsorship opportunities are still available, Delperdang said. To become a sponsor, fill out the form on page 10.

Friday evening will include a hog roast and avalanche awareness class, sponsored by the Lyon County Sno-Lyons of Region 1, and all day Saturday will be a vintage snowmobile Show-N-Shine display, coordinated by the Dickinson County Snowhawks of Region 1.

Clubs from across the state are also invited to set up booths to provide information on their activities as part of the annual Snowmobile Iowa showcase, a tradition which began in 2003 when the convention was also held in the Iowa Great Lakes region.

Hypnotist Planned for Evening Entertainment

Saturday morning will include officer and director elections for the ISSA, the general membership meeting and an update on snowmobile legislation.

The western representative on the Iowa State Snowmobile Trail Grant Program's Review and Selection Committee (RSC) will also be voted on. This position is open to any registered sled owner in the state.

In 2017, the ISSA assumed control of the program from the Iowa Department of Natural Resources. Working in step with the RSC, the program is co-administered by ISSA President Chris Willey and Past ISSA President Terry Durby. A financial update on the program is expected either during the Saturday morning session or prior to the start of the groomer training seminar, Willey said.

Following the seminars Saturday afternoon will be the evening banquet, awards ceremony, drawings and club donations. Running concurrent to the 5 p.m. Social Hour will be an opportunity for adolescent snowmobilers to meet and discuss the ISSA's Youth Program.

Providing entertainment for the evening will be hypnotist Sami Dare from Red Wing, Minn. The weekend wraps up with the monthly ISSA Board of Directors meeting Sunday morning.

For more information or questions regarding convention, please contact Delperdang at (712) 330-2609 or dandelperdang@hotmail.com

Host Needed for 2019

As of press time, a convention host for

Sami Dare performing

2019 was still needed. Since 2012, the site for state convention has been on a west-to-east rotation. Next year is the central part of the state's turn, but through the middle of October, a bid had not been turned in yet. Bids were due by the end of the month.

"If no proposals are received from a central club, it is open to any club to submit a proposal," Willey said. "If no clubs submit a proposal, it is up to the ISSA board of directors to take action."

The board was faced with a similar situation this summer when nary a club stepped forward to host the annual campout. The planning fell back onto the ISSA, and what resulted was a fall campout at Manchester which had to be cancelled due to excessive rain at the Delaware County Fairgrounds during the week leading up to the event.

Officials hope to announce the date and location of the 2019 convention at the conclusion of this month's event.

Toolcat Mower Clearing Trails Across State This Fall

Representing six of the 10 ISSA regions, 13 snowmobile clubs have signed up to use the Toolcat mower this fall for trail maintenance and preparation.

The ISSA inherited the machine from the Iowa Department of Natural Resources during the transfer of equipment following the transition in management of the state snowmobile program.

"We are scheduling the unit as efficiently as possible, taking into consideration logistics and dates requested," explained Past ISSA President Jim Willey, who is coordinating the unit's movement across the state.

If your club is interested in reserving the mower, please contact Willey at (563) 920-0911 or email him at james.willey@camoplast.com. Please note only certified groomer operators are eligible to run the machine on the trails and or in the ditches.

"When you receive the unit, we ask that you do everything possible to complete your use as quickly as possible, so it can be moved on to the next club waiting to use it," he said. "If you are not able to use the Toolcat when I call you to let you know that it is available, we will take it to the next club on the list and reschedule your time with it."

Snow Snoops President Seth Bram plays in a meadow along the Shell Rock River March 25.

Boondocking in Butler County

by Cameron Hanson

Dropping temperatures 20 degrees below normal, a weather system moved through Iowa the second weekend in October and, with two months of fall left, produced an unexpected and unseasonable couple of inches of snow across parts of the state.

Although short-lived, the thin, white blanket seemed to provide a morale boost to snowmobilers here who came off their third straight season last winter of sub-par riding conditions. Hopefully, this early tease of the white stuff will translate into abundant snow-cover this year.

Besides giving orange pumpkins a white toupee, the premature snow event also bookended an off-season which began just six months earlier after four spring storms each dumped close to a foot of snow across the northern tier of Iowa, as documented in last month's magazine.

While that article admittedly focused on last winter's bad timing, the tardy arrival of snow last year did salvage the season for at least three riders from Region 4, including myself. I guess the glass wasn't completely empty, even though I had already put my machine away for the year when the storms arrived.

Up until that fourth weekend of March, riding in Iowa for me

last season had amounted to a couple laps around Clear Lake during the Jack Race, a day trip to Okoboji for Winter Games and a frustrating attempt to ride to a club meeting in Greene two weeks later.

Sprinkled in between those in-state events were three trips to the Northwoods of Wisconsin, all of which helped to push my season's total over 1,000 miles last winter but failed to provide the satisfaction of riding local trails created by the hard-working volunteers from nearby clubs.

So when blizzard-like conditions hit close to home March 23-24, it didn't take too much arm-twisting to pull the sled out of storage and back where it belonged out on the trail. By noon on Sunday, March 25, a few quick text messages had set the plan in motion for the day for this trio of diehard sledders.

Make-Up Date for Ride Iowa

Heading west from Floyd, I first met up with Steve King, trail coordinator for the Floyd County Groomers, near Rudd, at which time we turned back south toward Rockford and Marble Rock to hook up with Seth Bram, president of the Butler County Snow Snoops, who was coming up from the south on the Aredale trail.

As expected for this time of the year, the snow was heavy and wet but plenty thick enough to create ideal trail conditions as we cruised along the Shell Rock River. The sun was shining, and temperatures were well above freezing to make for a very comfortable ride.

Just west of Marble Rock, we departed the meandering riverbottom trail and turned toward Aredale. About six miles down that cross-country path, we could begin to see a lone snowmobiler riding toward us on the horizon, and like the opening shot to a western movie, Bram slowly came into view.

Throughout our first 35 miles of riding, traffic was very light this afternoon. In fact, Bram, up until this point, was the only other sled we had encountered. Other tracks were visible on the trail, but there was still plenty of room to ride on undisturbed snow, which can oftentimes be just as plush as a freshly groomed trail.

While invitations were sent out, no other riders were expected to be joining us, and with very little options for open businesses on a Sunday, we decided to double back toward Marble Rock and

Besides plenty of riverbottom, the 180-mile trail system in Butler County also features field crossings, courtesy of the Snow Snoops' more than 200 private landowners in the area.

Snow-flocked evergreens on the west side of the Shell Rock River made this early spring ride feel more like Christmas.

head towards Greene and Clarksville, thus resuming our scenic tour along the Shell Rock.

Our route for the day pretty much mirrored the southern half of the first Ride Iowa event planned for Jan. 13 last season, which King and Bram were jointly coordinating and which ultimately had been cancelled due to poor trail conditions. In fact, only one of the six Ride Iowa dates were actually fulfilled last winter, unless you count this day as a make-up date for that first one.

Riding Both Sides of the River

At Greene, we departed the Floyd County trail system and picked up the Butler County trail to Clarksville. On the way down, we rode the southeasterly side of the river, which included a nice loop through some meadows and created an opportunity for some “Butler County boondocking,” as Bram called it.

“I may be a little biased, but I would have to say that riding along the Shell Rock between Greene and Clarksville is about the best Iowa riding you can get,” he boasted. “It’s just perfect, weaving in and out of the timber and coming to openings that overlook the river. The pictures really don’t do it justice.”

“I’ve been riding these trails pretty much all my life, and they have yet to let me down,” added King. “They always seem to catch a lot of snow and are well maintained by the club down here.”

It was near Packard that we ran into the only other real traffic for the day as a dozen or so riders were heading back toward their trailers parked at the trailhead in Greene. When we arrived at the restaurant in Clarksville, we met a few more local riders; but other than that, we pretty much had the trails to ourselves.

After supper in Clarksville, we opted for the club’s northwesterly route along the Shell Rock River, which began just south of town at Heery Woods State Park. Getting to this connection was a bit of a challenge, however, as most of the snow on the streets through town had melted and this was the only way to get across the railroad tracks.

With carbides still intact, we painstakingly made it to the state park for some nice wooded riding before banging a ditch and scraping over a bridge to get to the other side of the river. Once back on the trail, the sleds and their riders were both a lot happier, and we followed the signs up to the Camp Comfort Recreation Area, site of the 2017 ISSA Summer Campout hosted by the Snow Snoops.

From the campground, the trail followed the same path the Snow Snoops had used for their hay ride into Greene during campout weekend. Now covered in a thick coat of snow, the scenery appeared quite familiar, although we were taking it in at a much faster clip than on the hay racks nine months earlier.

Extended Daylight Hours

Riding five days after the first day of spring, the sun did not set that night until 7:30 p.m. so our circadian rhythm was a little off balance when we arrived at the bowling alley in Greene for our second stop of the day. Normally riding in the dark after 5 p.m., the waning light of the day made it feel a lot earlier than it actually was.

From there, we headed back into Floyd County and eventually split off for home, ending with close to 150 miles for this last ride of the season. Looking back on it now, rideable snow would vanish by mid-week so the decision to pull the sled out of storage seemed like the right thing to do last March. Better late than never, I guess.

“Abundant snow, warm temperatures, extended daylight and getting out to ride with friends made for a pretty good day for all of us,” King noted.

King and Bram said they are both looking forward to hosting another Ride Iowa event this year, and after two straight winters of getting shut out by Mother Nature, they hope the third time is the charm.

Following the goal of the ISSA’s guided trail-ride program, Bram said he is eager to showcase his club’s 180-mile trail system this season and is grateful to the 200 private property owners in their area who open up their land for public use.

“I’m definitely proud of these trails and thankful to our wonderful landowners who allow us goofy snowmobilers to enjoy their beautiful land,” he said. “We have a lot of nice areas to ride in and hope the weather cooperates a little earlier this year, although we had a blast riding late last spring.”

O'Brien County Snowtrackers

by Zelda Buse Christensen, Reporter

I am writing this on Oct. 12, nearly eight weeks since I fractured my leg, unfortunately. Wearing a brace on a leg and walking with crutches for nearly seven weeks, my activities have been greatly curtailed.

For example, someone else has been mowing my lawn, which needed mowing repeatedly during our frequently wet weather. But now I could do it myself. Although the ground was far from dry, I did mow some of the front stuff before quitting for dinner and letting the dew dry more. Although I was dressed in several layers, with the temperature in the low 30s, I needed to warm up also. Getting heavy clothes on again to finish the job after eating, I looked out the window. And what greeted my eyes on this October day? SNOW! The air was filled with fluffy flakes drifting down. They did change to water the second they landed in the grass or on the ground—no drifting! But the snow continued for a couple hours, and the lawnmower went back in the shed.

What conclusions can be drawn from this kind of weather? One is simply that this is Iowa, so anything is possible. Another possibility is that two things just got flipped: snow that should come in January came in October, so October-type weather can be expected in January, squelching any need for grooming snowmobile trails. But still another possibility is that this snow is a harbinger of bountiful snow to come this winter, making for excellent snowmobiling.

Let's hope that last idea is the one that happens—leading to renewed interest and enthusiasm in snowmobiling in the state of Iowa! Remember to attend the ISSA state convention at the Iowa Great Lakes later this month!

Worth County Fence Stretchers

by Nicole Knudson, Secretary

Fall is in full swing, harvest is underway and we are preparing for yet another snowmobile season.

The Worth County Fence Stretchers will again host a membership night Nov. 13 in which we gather for socializing, food and renewing of memberships for both our club but also the ISSA.

As we think of the upcoming season, we also must remember the importance of purchasing two stickers for our sleds: one for registration but also a trail permit. In the September issue, an article written by Cameron Hanson highlighted the importance of encouraging all to purchase a state trail permit. Even in years of no snow, it still takes money to maintain the trail system, so that when it does snow, we all can enjoy what Iowa has to offer. This is a great point that we can remind all of our fellow snowmobile enthusiasts of, especially since recent years have left us with very little opportunities for local riding.

Our club was once again able to offer the "Tom Coyle Memorial Scholarship" to a local high school graduate whose family has been involved in our club. This year, the recipient was Maria Determan, who was very deserving of this scholarship. Her family has been dedicated members of our club, teaching the youth snowmobile safety class locally for many years. Congrats to Maria!

This is all for now so until next time, may the harvest be bountiful and safe for all!

Greetings from beautiful Butler County!! WE HAVE STRUCK WHITE GOLD!!! Never would have guessed as I type this that it would be snowing in October!! We've gotten a little over an inch here in the Packard area, and it is still coming down. You can't help but get a little excited.

Anyway, the Snow Snoops have been hard at it this year. In June, we set up a display at the Butler County Fair in Allison, and then in July, we hosted our first annual golf tournament, the Snow Snoops Open, at the Round Grove Country Club in Greene that was a huge hit. We've also had a couple sponsorship car cruises that were fun as well.

We haven't been able to inspect our trails to see if they have sustained any damage from this latest flooding event. Currently, several club members are teaming together to build what may be the first trail roller in Iowa! We are hopeful that this will help build a trail-base for the drag to work later and speed up initial grooming operations.

Lastly, you will see that our trail map is this month's centerfold. We hope that you can hang it up in your shop and enjoy!! Well, that's all for me. I need to go open the garage and let my sled see this white stuff coming down. Hope to see you on the trails in Butler County this winter!

Wow! Hard to believe November already. That means it's time to tell about our annual Toys for Tots Kickoff Dance on Nov. 24. This year, Wayne at the South Side Bar & Grill in Cresco will be our host. We will have a D.J. starting at 8 p.m. until ???. Admission will be a new unwrapped toy or cash donation. The cash donations are used to buy more toys, and then all toys are donated locally in time for Christmas. It's a real 'feel good' event that the club has sponsored for many years now. If you are unable to attend and want to donate, you can drop off your toys or donation at the Cresco Chamber of Commerce office.

I would also like to report that as of Oct. 12, I have received 77 memberships for the 2019 year. We are again running our same promotion as last year. All membership renewals and new memberships received or postmarked by Dec. 1 will get one free raffle ticket book (6 tickets) in the Snowfest Raffle. Pretty good deal:

Iowa Snowdrifters

by Ron Roe

Hello snowmobile enthusiasts. Another month has passed, and we're now 30 days closer to the white snow.

We had two club meetings the second week of October. There was not a lot to get started on yet, but we have so many trails that are under water, that it's questionable if and when we will get the trails marked. We will probably have more bridge work than usual because of the high water.

We had a trail clean up day the last Saturday of October, and we will then be marking the trails on Saturday, Nov 17. Anyone that can come and help with the trails should meet at the Solon Legion at 8 a.m. for breakfast, and we will start working at 9 a.m. The more hands we have, the faster it goes. Thank you in advance for helping out.

Well, I am sort of on the injured reserve list. I had surgery on my right shoulder. They put in a new ball and socket. For a right handed person, that makes a lot of things difficult to do. Because of that, I am shrinking this letter quite a bit. That is all for now. It is hard to write, and there is not much to talk about yet.

Remember the state convention is Nov 16-18 in Okoboji at the Arrowwood Resort. I promise to have more next month.

From left, John Kahler, Steve Klinkefus, Bruno Andreini and Barry Starmer of the Saylorville Dam Snowmobile Club of Region 7 participated in the Spina Bifida Association of Iowa's Walk-N-Roll Oct. 6 at Principal Park in Des Moines. This annual fall event raises funds, provides support and entertains families living with spina bifida.
